Air Seychelles A320neo – Unbeatable fuel efficiency

The Air Seychelles Airbus A320neo jetliner is the world's most advanced fuel efficient single-aisle aircraft. Powered by the LEAP-1A engine from CFM International, the aircraft featuring large, fuel-saving wingtip devices known as sharklets generates 20% fuel savings on average per flight. The new generation aircraft also produces approximately 50% reduced noise footprint and nitrogen oxides (NOx) on average per flight.

As part of its commitment to support the national drive towards sustainability, Air Seychelles has named its first A320neo aircraft 'Veuve' commonly known as the Seychelles Paradise Flycatcher, a "critically endangered" bird in the Seychelles. The second acquisition expected to be delivered in March 2020 will also be named after one of the islands' critically endangered bird, as part of the airline's commitment to raise awareness about the protection of the Seychelles ecosystem and its endemic species.
